NEW YORK, September 28.-The tendency of stock prices during the greater part of the day was downward. Profittaking was mainly responsible for the reaction, but an advance in the posted and actual rates of sterling exchange, the poor statements for August made by some of the leading roads, and a reduction in the prices of refined sugar were also contributing factors. The advance in sterling exchange and the higher rates for discounts in London created an impression that the movement of gold this way was over, temporarily at least, and in advance of the details little credence was placed in the London rumor of a probable shipment of $5,000,000 in gold to New
